

The Mythology of the Wichita, Collected Under the Auspices of the Carnegie Institution of Washington (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Mythology of the Wichita, Collected Under the Auspices of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Inasmuch as the present work forms but a part of my investigations among the tribes of the Cadvdoan stock, I have deferred until a later publication references to tales of a similar nature of other tribes, while in the Introduction I have confined myself to such matter as would assist in understanding the references made in the tales to the customs and beliefs of the Wichita. The music accompanying certain myths has been transcribed by Mr. Frederic R. Burton, who is also responsible for the comments made on the songs.
