

Ryoo Seung-wan

After proving his passion and gift for filmmaking with Die Bad (composed of four shorts), Ryoo Seung-wan has continued to shape his stylistic range through various genres: noir action with No Blood, No Tears; comic action with Dachimawa Lee; urban martial arts with Arahan; human drama with Crying Fist; and more. Running through this wide spectrum of films like an electric current is action that achieves a new kind of poetry and vision. The City of Violence (2006) was invited to Venice International Film Festival in the Midnight Section. 2010 sees Ryoo releasing The Unjust and Trapped (working title).
