

Live In Letters Colorized Reading Program: Awakening the Alphabet, Balancing the Brain, Creating Christ-Centered Communities

Darkened by the repulsing rigidity of traditional black-and-white formatting, shade the suppressing stains of singularity and its stifling effects on reading instruction... It can be difficult for children and adults with or without learning disabilities, ADHD, Aspergers Syndrome, Autism, and visual impairments to read, comprehend, and recall traditional black and white text. Black-and-white text also offers little engagement, memory recall, attentiveness, and expression. Artists use color to create patterns. Colors can show different moods; bright colors can make people feel happy and energetic, whereas dark colors can make people feel calm or sadcreating a lasting impression. The Live In Letters Colorized Reading Program is a multi-tiered color-pattern software that creates a colorized visual aid when reading from an electronic device, such as a laptop or desktop computer, a mobile device, a projection screen or even a television. Told through the eyes of Inventor/Founder, Kelly Russell, Live In Letters unveils the saving grace of Jesus Christ, the shrouded discovery of the Live In Letters Colorized Reading Program, its startling research findings and the supernatural connections that have colorfully created the journey over the last three years...
